Volunteers honored at Senior Center

From staff reports

Two hundred volunteers and guests gathered at the Sheridan Senior Center on April 30 for a dinner honoring volunteers for their dedication.

The meal was prepared by Carolyn Benepe, community nutrition director, Robin Wacker, dietary manager, and Sysco Foods with assistance from Senior Center staff and a few volunteers from the community.

Guests were served by Sheridan College nursing students.

Chamber music was provided by Madelene Anderson and "String Buddies" Gisela Terrell and Jeanette Leno-Thomas, and guests dined in an environment of black, red and silver stars.

Volunteer Dora Davidson was the recipient of an original pressed flower print donated by another Senior Center volunteer, Connie Archer.

"Your work is not just about making the center a better place, it's not even just about the individual lives you touch — and you touch many — your work makes Sheridan a better place," said Senior Center Executive Director Carmen Rideout. "When you make Sheridan a better place, you make Wyoming better, and by bettering Wyoming, you make our country better. And in the end, you make this world a better place!"

She added, "You are priceless. It is impossible to measure what you do for our community."

Rideout gave special recognition to Board Chair Renetta Mischke, volunteers of all ages, and the Daniels Fund, which financially supports the volunteer department.

"It is a privilege to recognize and honor Senior Center volunteers," said Volunteer Director Nancy McKenzie. "The Senior Center staff is dedicated to making this annual event special, so we can show volunteers how truly thankful we are for all they do for us and the community throughout the year."
